

Novel presentation of Autoimmune Polyglandular Syndrome II in a child, with simultaneous Addison's disease, type 1 diabetes, and Hashimoto's: a case report

Kayla Staub<sup>1</sup> and Pamela Abrams<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Lewis Katz School of Medicine at Temple University

<sup>2</sup>St Luke's University Health Network

October 21, 2020

Abstract

We present an 11-year-old female with persistent hypoglycemia in the setting of new-onset type I diabetes mellitus, with further diagnosis of both Hashimoto's thyroiditis and Addison's disease for a diagnosis of autoimmune polyglandular syndrome type II, an autosomal dominant syndrome. Three years later, the child's mother was subsequently diagnosed.

Hosted file

ccr_submission_main_text.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/369058/articles/487989-novel-presentation-of-autoimmune-polyglandular-syndrome-ii-in-a-child-with-simultaneous-addison-s-disease-type-1-diabetes-and-hashimoto-s-a-case-report>