

COVID-19, When fourteen days are not enough – A case series of affected healthcare workers

Catherine Murphy<sup>1</sup>, Noirin Noonan<sup>2</sup>, Eilis O'Toole<sup>2</sup>, Patrick Plunkett<sup>2</sup>, Zenia Martin<sup>2</sup>,
Catriona Canning<sup>2</sup>, Mary Paula Colgan<sup>2</sup>, and Martina Hennessy<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Affiliation not available

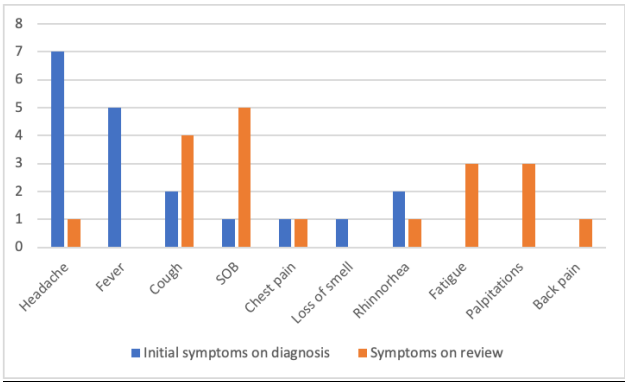

<sup>2</sup>Trinity College Dublin School of Medicine

October 30, 2020

Abstract

This case series identified a sub cohort of healthcare workers with COVID-19 who experienced a prolonged symptomatic course and remained unable to return to work for many weeks. It notes their demographic and clinical characteristics and suggest ways to support them returning to work in a graded and supported manner.

Figure1: Bar chart- Symptoms at initial diagnosis vs symptoms at time of review

†- Figure represents each patient's main symptom only