

Complicated delivery in a patient with acute respiratory distress syndrome on Coronavirus disease 2019 infection

Alexis Bikfalvi<sup>1</sup>, Aleksandar Dabetic<sup>1</sup>, and Moira Robertson<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>CHUV

November 27, 2020

Abstract

A 39-year-old parturient contracted COVID-19 at 28 weeks of gestation and later developed ARDS requiring emergent caesarean section, intubation and 11 days of invasive ventilation. Her infant also required intubation due to hyaline membrane disease, he was not infected by COVID-19. Both evolved well and could return home.

Hosted file

Bikfalvi_november2020.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/379298/articles/495525-complicated-delivery-in-a-patient-with-acute-respiratory-distress-syndrome-on-coronavirus-disease-2019-infection>

