

Bizarre Behaviors in Delusional Infertile Women and Family Shared Psychosis; a Rare Case Report

Reza Bidaki¹, Mahsa Motamed², Sina Taherzadeh Borujeni², Mina Bozorg³, Leila Nouraddini¹, and Bonnie Bozorg⁴

¹Shahid Sadoughi University of Medical Sciences and Health Services

²Tehran University of Medical Sciences

³Shiraz University

⁴Shahid Beheshti University of Medical Sciences

April 28, 2021

Abstract

False pregnancy” can be described as a false belief of being pregnant despite factual evidence to the contrary. A 33-year-old woman, was referred to the hospital, believing that she was pregnant. Contrary to the patient’s reports, which show no child. The importance of research is to show how the patient’s delusions affects her

Hosted file

`mqlh \selectlanguage{english}false pregnancy wrjn nhyy.\selectlanguage{english}pdf` available at <https://authorea.com/users/410489/articles/519858-bizarre-behaviors-in-delusional-infertile-women-and-family-shared-psychosis-a-rare-case-report>