

Medical devices that should be prescribed to patients with cataplexy to reduce their risk of injury

Dr. Carolina Diamandis<sup>1</sup> and Adrian Tudor<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Affiliation not available

<sup>2</sup>LCG Greece

May 24, 2021

Abstract

Patients suffering from cataplexies have a highly significant risk of severe injury. This paper discusses (manufacturer-independent) medical devices that should be prescribed to any patient with moderate to severe cataplexy.

Hosted file

Cataplexy aids for adults III.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/410930/articles/522888-medical-devices-that-should-be-prescribed-to-patients-with-cataplexy-to-reduce-their-risk-of-injury>