

Highlights

- Average solar absorptance of Ca-based particles is improved up to 90%.
- A template synthesis method is used to create pores inside the composite particles.
- Composite porous particles exhibit benign cyclic stability and mechanical strength.
- A kinetic function describing the isothermal carbonation process is established.